

MANANG & TILICHO

2022 Research Trip in Nepal
1/2

What is a Research Trip?

These trips are once off itineraries where we test out new routes and locations to see if they are viable for future Be Your Best adventures. The details of such trips can change on short notice, and typically they cover a small region but offer more time in that region to discover new highlights. The travel style is typically very basic and prone to unforeseen compromises. We typically limit access to research trips to people who have travelled with us previously and can be assured that they will roll with the bumps in good humor :)

The Basics

- All meals, accommodation, transport and permits are included. Visa and tipping is not.
- Accommodation is single rooms by default, noting that once we enter the jeep section of the tour expect only very basic guesthouses. Sleeping bags and towels will be provided by our ground team so you don't have to pack extra gear.
- Weather conditions will be very cold above 3500m, with sub-zero at night but typically comfortable during the day while the sunshine is out. Puffy jacket is recommended for the Manang and Tilicho sections.
- Reaching Tilicho Lake from Manang requires one section of trekking. Where the road ends, there is 2km of trail to negotiate with a 1,000m rise in elevation. This is slow and difficult at altitude, but we have lots of time to complete it.
- It may be possible to hire horses for that 2km section, but there are no certainties.
- Packing and pre-departure docs will be supplied in advance of the trip.
- Priced at AUD $7,880pp (~US$5,500)
